Stellantis North America Names Thompson as Head of US Retail Sales

May 24, 2024, Auburn Hills, Mich. - Stellantis North America today appointed Matt Thompson as Senior Vice President of U.S. Retail Sales, effective immediately.

Thompson will oversee U.S. sales planning and incentives, retail sales promotions, dealer relations and field operations in support of the brands.

A 25-year veteran of the company, Thompson has spent the majority of his career working alongside the dealer network in various assignments throughout the U.S., including serving in multiple roles in the Northeast and Midwest Business Centers. He most recently was Vice President of Sales Planning and Programs.

“Matt has a deep background supporting our sales organization and most recently has been focused on the most critical aspects of our commercial business,” said Carlos Zarlenga Chief Operating Officer, Stellantis North America. “Matt’s experiences are invaluable at this time of transition for the industry and our company. With our stable of iconic brands, we will continue to bring consumers exciting, must have products to compete in today’s hyper competitive market.”

Thompson replaces Jason Stoicevich who has elected to leave the company for personal reasons.
